PRICE THREE CENTS

SELL REINWALD ESTATE STOCKS WORTH $9,600

Gettysburg National Bank Stocks Bring New High Price of $130.50 Tuesday.

One of the first steps in his office as executor of the estate of Mrs. Irene D. Reinwald, who gave her home in Center Square and much of her personal property for the establishment of a Young Woman's Christian Association here, was taken by I. L. Taylor, president of the Gettysburg National Bank, Tuesday afternoon, when he sold at a public auction securities which brought $9600.

Estate Worth $88,000
Mrs. Reinwald's estate, not including the real estate, has been appraised at $88,861.82. The house in Center Square has been appraised by the state at $20,000.

The sale, which was held at the Reinwald residence, was largely attended, and excellent prices were recorded for most of the stocks offered. A new high figure for the stock of the Gettysburg National Bank was made when part of a block of 31 shares sold at $130.50 a share. The low price bid for stock of that bank was $125.50. Par value of Gettysburg National Bank stock is $50.

Water Co. Stock $24
A block of 107 shares of Gettysburg Water Company stock registered at a high price of $24 a share, and a low of $22.50, par value being $15 a share.

Twenty-four shares of Gettysburg Ice and Storage Company stock, par $50, sold at a high of $80.25, and a low of $78 a share, while 24 shares of Adams County Cold Storage Company stock, par $50, sold at par.

Mrs. Reinwald left considerable stock, which is not local, and Mr. Taylor is engaged in converting the shares into cash, as part of his duties as executor of her estate. Sixty days, he said, would be required before all of the deceased woman's stocks could be sold.

To Sell Antiques
Also within sixty days, he said, antiques, furniture and china in the Reinwald house, not suitable for the purposes of a Y. W. C. A., would be sold at public auction.

The executor said today that he hoped to have the Y. W. C. A. under way by Thanksgiving Day, this year, adding that he sees the value and need of such an organization in Gettysburg particularly in the winter months. Details of the organization and establishment of a Y. W. C. A. here have not yet been worked out by Mr. Taylor, but he said help would be asked of the international association in locating a branch here, and that probably an organizer would come to Gettysburg to assist in the organization of the local Y.

Mrs. Reinwald, widow of the Rev. Charles Reinwald, died March 28, 1925. Most of her estate was willed for the establishment of a Y. W. C. A. here, naming Mr. Taylor as executor. James Caldwell was auctioneer at the sale of the stock, Tuesday afternoon, with C. C. Bream as clerk.

SUCCESSOR TO LOCAL MAN IS NAMED BY BOARD

Willard Bell, of Leesport, was elected principal of the Pottsville High School at a salary of $3500. Mr. Bell succeeds Professor Earl K. Diehl, of Gettysburg, who has been ill for the past year. There were eight applicants for the position and up to within 24 hours no one knew that Mr. Bell was a candidate. His election was announced following a meeting of the school board Tuesday.

The board was uncertain in its choice until Bell had a conference with President Umbenhen. Bell was principal of Tyrone High School for the last three years. He is a graduate of Wesleyan College and has taught school at Williamsport and Danville. Miss Clare Long, a graduate of Wilson College, was elected a member of the high school faculty, to succeed Miss Lucille Dunmyer, who is to be married.

PRIEST TRANSFERRED

The Rev. Philip A. Leibach, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, McSherrystown, has been transferred to Shamokin while the Rev. Richard H. McLaughlin, Bloomsburg, will fill the place made vacant by the Rev. Leibach. It was learned from St. Mary's rectory, McSherrystown.

Death Duel

HARRY K. KIRK

Henry K. Kirk, son of a well-known San Francisco family, world adventurer and poet, was found apparently murdered. A few days later the body of John Truder was found and with it a note telling of a strange duel in the desert when he and Kirk, back to back, shot out their grievances.

LICENSE TAGS RECEIVED HERE

Will Not Be Issued Until Copies Of Game Laws Are Received From Harrisburg Office.

Harry J. Troxell, county treasurer, has received the county's 1925 assignment of hunting licenses, but none will be issued for several days, pending receipt from Harrisburg of copies of game laws which are to be distributed at the same time.

Treasurer Troxell received 4500 licenses and tags from the state, which is expected to be enough for applicants this year. Last year 4306 licenses were issued in the county.

Already the county treasurer has a number of applications. C. A. Hershey, president of the board of county commissioners, will receive license No. 1. F. Mark Bream, Carlisle street, who each year takes out a license number corresponding to the number of the years he has been hunting, will receive license No. 13 this year.

Blue, Yellow Letters
The licenses this year are blue with yellow letters. Adams county is No. 1 in the state and that number, the number of the individual license and the words "Display on the Middle of the Back" appear on the licenses. The licenses are of tin.

With the receipt of the tags, County Treasurer Troxell announced that the state game commission has revoked the hunting license of Peter McDannell, Orrtanna R. 1, until May 1, 1926, for violation of the game laws. He is one of 385 sportsmen in the state whose licenses have been revoked.

COUNTY C. E. TO MEET IN FAIRFIELD

The Adams County Christian Endeavor Union will hold its annual convention Wednesday and Thursday, August 5 and 6, at Zion Lutheran church, Fairfield, the Rev. Ralph Baker, pastor, it was announced today by Miss Lou Etta Sharetts, county president.

The first session will be held Wednesday evening, August 5, when Rev. F. S. Ernest, ex-president of the United Brethren Christian Endeavor Union, will give an address on "First Aid to the Uninjured."

Convention sessions will continue all day Thursday and Thursday evening. Rev. C. E. Hetzler, state secretary, and other state officers are expected to be present and give addresses.

Entertainment will be furnished all delegates. All Endeavorers who expect to attend the conference should send their names to Rev. Ralph Baker, Fairfield.

Miss Sharetts is urging all Christian Endeavorers of the county to attend the convention. The meetings will be open to the public.

ODD FELLOWS PLAN LABOR DAY PICNIC

The second annual picnic of all Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Central Pennsylvania will be held Labor Day, September 7, at Hecla Park. More than 7000 Odd Fellows, Rebekahs and friends attended the affair last year and the committee in charge of the 1925 picnic is expecting an even larger crowd.

Baseball games, dancing, bathing, canoeing and other amusements will be provided while an orchestra will furnish music throughout the day.

HIGH SCHOOL AND GROUNDS, BEAUTY SPOT

Pictures Of New Buildings And Detail-plans Attract Large Crowds.

Pictures of the front of Gettysburg's new high school building, now under construction at the Playground, the detailed floor plan and the landscape beautifying planned for the approaches and the immediate vicinity of the building are attracting considerable attention in the show window of A. B. Plank, Baltimore street, president of the local board of education.

The building will be of brick construction, and will cost approximately $100,000 when completed. The new school will take the form of a hollow square, with one side open, and, if the need arises in the future, additions can be built to the present wings. A. R. Warner, Waynesboro, is the contractor and bids for the plumbing, heating and lighting will be opened by the board at a special meeting, Thursday evening.

Large Gymnasium
The detailed floor plan of the basement calls for two locker rooms, one for girls and the other for boys, a domestic science room, a cafeteria, laboratory, science room, one unassigned class room, fan-room, boiler room and coal bunker. Besides these rooms, the gymnasium also occupies space in the basement.

The gymnasium will be 48x76 feet, with 19 1/2 feet from floor to ceiling, allowing plenty of space for basketball games. Around the rim of this bowl will be a gallery capable of accommodating several hundred fans. Shower baths and locker rooms will be easily accessible from the gymnasium. There will be two entrances to the new building. On the first floor will be the principal's room, typewriting and commercial class rooms, and four large, well lighted classrooms in the wings. The typewriting and commercial rooms will be separate, so that the noise of the former will not disturb classes in the other. In the present high school building, the typewriting classes are held in the hall of the main entrance, and the clicking of the typing machines is heard throughout the building.

Spacious Auditorium
An auditorium, measuring 48x74 feet, will occupy most of the space between the two wings and the main part of the building. The seating capacity of the auditorium and the gallery on the second floor will be in the neighborhood of 800 persons, considered.

Funeral Services Held On Tuesday

35 "FRESH AIR" KIDDIES COMING

Adams County People to Play "Big Brother" to Youthful Visitors Two Weeks in August.

Gettysburg and Adams county people have already volunteered to play the part of "big brother" to a total of 35 under-privileged children, between the ages of five and twelve years, from the tenement districts of New York City for two weeks in August, it is announced by W. W. Wood, chairman of the general committee arranging for their entertainment under the auspices of the New York Herald-Tribune fresh air fund, and social service workers of the metropolis.

Excellent Homes
A number of people have requested children to take them into their own homes and entertain them in a simple manner for the two weeks' period, while others who are not so situated that they can entertain the children themselves have contributed five dollars for each of the two weeks for the entertainment of the children in homes where people are anxious to have them, but cannot afford to take them without financial aid toward their boarding. Excellent homes have been found for all the children. Mr. Wood said today, and all arrangements are being made to make this a gala event for the youthful visitors, many of whom have never seen beyond the dark walls of the crowded tenement districts.

2 Weeks In August
Mr. Wood is making preparations to send his report and requisition to New York for the children within the next few days, and in the meantime if there are any others who desire to entertain one or more of the children, either girls or boys, they can obtain them by communicating with Mr. Wood at his home on Baltimore street, Gettysburg. Briefly summarized, the plan is this:

Time—August 12 to September 26. Place—Any Adams county home. Hosts—Residents of the county who would like to entertain one or more of those under-privileged children. The paper will pay the transportation to and from New York City and Gettysburg. The Rotary Club through its committee headed by Mr. Wood will distribute and collect the children.

Each child must be physically fit before he is sent to the vacation homes. Requests for the "kiddies" should be mailed to W. W. Wood, Baltimore street, Gettysburg, Pa.

Young Husband Buried Monday

Funeral services for Marvin Cook, 28, Harrisburg, who died last Friday following a lingering illness of complications, were held Monday afternoon with burial in Mt. Pleasant cemetery, Harrisburg. The deceased's widow was formerly Miss Eva Oyler, of Biglerville, and is well known in Gettysburg, having visited here on a number of occasions. He is survived by his widow and one son, James. The couple resided in New York, where Mr. Cook was associated with the Pullman company.

WM. OGDEN TO BE OPPOSED FOR TAX COLLECTOR

Martin W. Klinefelter Ready To Enter Race For Republican Nomination.

Martin W. Klinefelter, York street, is preparing to throw his hat into the political arena of Gettysburg politics, which daily is seeing new battlers climb through the ropes for action when the preliminary show is staged, September 15, and for the main bout on November 3, according to reliable information received today.

Mr. Klinefelter, a Republican, will spar with William Ogden, Republican incumbent, for the nomination as tax collector of the borough, at the primary, and will endeavor to give Lawrence E. Oyler, unopposed announced candidate, the knock-out at the general election in November.

Papers Are Ready
Mr. Klinefelter's nominating papers were filled out, Tuesday night, and were ready for filing at the office of the county commissioners, stages of the county "shows" in September and again in November. Mr. Ogden, the present tax collector, filed his nominating petition several weeks ago.

Up to the present, Mr. Oyler has no opposition within his party, and political whispers carry no news of an opponent for the announced Democratic aspirant.

Miss Lorna J. Weaver, West High street, who has assisted election boards in the Third Ward for several years, has come forward and filed nomination papers for a permanent job on the board in that ward as inspector of elections. Her papers were filed Tuesday. She is the second woman to file nominating papers for the primary.

Other Petitions
Other candidates who have filed are William R. Legore, Democrat, tax collector, Conowingo township; Peter Hufnagle, Republican and Democrat, supervisor, Conowingo township; Frank Becker, Democrat, school director, Conowingo township; Calvin Sanders, Democrat, school director, Hamiltonban township, and H. C. Shryock, Democrat, tax collector, Hamiltonban township.

Jones Serenaders At Buchanan Valley

Jones' Serenaders "black-faced musicians deluxe" feature the dancing party at Buchanan Valley, Saturday evening. On August 5, the Serenaders return to Carlisle for a return engagement, having played there on several occasions.

The Serenaders have reorganized their orchestra and are now rated one of the best in their class in this section of the state.

STOCK REPORT

New York, July 29.—Renewed buying of railroad shares featured the opening of today's stock market. Selling reached substantial proportions around the end of the first hour and turned the course of prices irregular. Net losses of two to four points were recorded by some recent strong issues. Call money opened at four per cent.

State Nurses to Conduct Health Inspections in Rural Districts

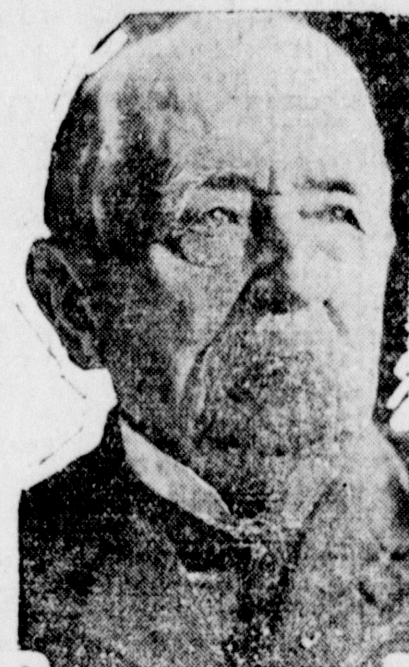

Adams county will be used as one of the experimental counties in the inauguration of a change in the system of rural school health inspections, announced Tuesday evening by Dr. Charles H. Miner, state secretary of health.

Under the proposed change, inspection of school children in fourth-class school districts will be taken out of the hands of county physicians and turned over to staff nurses of the department of health and Red Cross nurses in the counties where the plan is to be put into effect this fall.

Among the physicians in Adams county who have heretofore been medical examiners for county schools are Dr. W. E. Wolf, Arendtsville; Dr. George L. Rice, McSherrystown; Dr. W. F. Hollinger, Abbottstown; Dr. Albert Woerner, Cashtown; Dr. C. L. Myers, York Springs, and Dr. C. G. Crist, Gettysburg.

Is Not Informed
Dr. Crist today said he had read accounts of the proposed change in newspapers, but as yet had received

HOLD LOCAL MAN ON TWO CHARGES

Herman Kappes Accused of Being Drunk and Disorderly and With Resisting An Officer.

Herman Kappes, North Stratton street, is in the county jail, charged with being drunk and disorderly on the streets of town, and with resisting an officer. The arrest of Kappes followed an altercation with Chief of Police A. V. Weikert Tuesday evening in Center Square. Kappes, according to Chief Weikert, is also carrying a scalp wound, the result of being hit with a black-jack by the local officer, when Kappes resisted arrest.

According to Chief Weikert, Kappes was sitting down at the corner of Baltimore and High streets shortly before midnight last night. The officer asserted he approached Kappes and ordered him off the streets, adding that his condition was such that he was disorderly. Kappes is said to have started for home, walking as far as Center Square where he stopped. Chief Weikert declared that he approached Kappes and again ordered him home, to which the latter is alleged to have replied: "I'll go home when I get d-m good and ready."

Uses Black-Jack
Chief Weikert asserted he approached Kappes for the third time, bent on taking him to jail, when the latter is said to have drawn a pop-bottle from his pocket and attempted to strike the local officer. The Chief struck Kappes' arm and the bottle dropped to the sidewalk. Kappes, said the officer, stubbornly resisted arrest and the chief was forced to resort to his black-jack to subdue the man. Kappes was struck on the head with the weapon said the officer. An automobile was commandeered by the local official and the offender taken to the county jail.

His hearing is not scheduled until Thursday morning when he will be arraigned before Justice Hill. Chief Weikert declared that the pop-bottle with which Kappes attempted to strike him contained a liquid that he believed was "moonshine."

BRYAN FUNERAL TRAIN LEAVES FOR WASHINGTON

Dayton Hill-Folks Pay Last Tribute To Fundamentalist; Crowds View Remains.

(By Associated Press.)
Dayton, Tenn., July 29.—Quitting forever the little southern town where friends made his last days happy, the body of William Jennings Bryan early today began its long journey from Dayton to Washington where the nation will pay the final tribute to his memory before burial Friday in Arlington cemetery.

From the cottage where he was known and admired as the fundamentalist leader the remains of the Commoner are to be taken to the city where he was once Democratic chief-tain, representative and secretary of state.

In life he threw aside the political cloak for the plainer, less assuming raiment of the religious leader. In death the body passed from the scene of his last fight for fundamentalism to those of his earlier political strife.

Pay Final Tribute
In Dayton tribute was paid the fundamentalist in the simple fashion of those who dwell among the hills. In Washington will come the praise of those who knew him best as political leader, orator and statesman.

As the funeral car headed toward Washington news came from different sections of the country of the homage to be paid the memory of the silver-tongued orator of the Platte.

Pledges of his comrades in the fight against evolution came from far corners of the land. Telegrams and letters continued to flood the little home in Dayton, bringing to the widow notes of consolation.

1500 View Remains
Chattanooga, Tenn., July 29.—The Bryan funeral party arrived in Chattanooga at 10:15. The public was admitted to the special Pullman car where in single file they viewed the remains of the Commoner.

More than 1500 persons pressed against the iron barrier of the station when the train arrived. In single file men and women with a few children passed into the car where the dead statesman lay. They moved on without halting.

Flowers, the tribute of patriotic and civic organizations, were placed within the compartment with the body. Room was lacking to hold them all.

The widow remained in her seat in the rear section of the car. Her face showed the strain of the sorrowful burden which she has resolutely sustained.

Premontion of Death
Macon, Missouri, July 29.—William Jennings Bryan had a premonition he would die in sleep.

Last summer he said to Dr. A. C. Hildreth, of Macon, "My heart has not been beating just right. Some time after a big meeting or an occasion where I have been engaged in some sharp contest, I will lie down to rest and sleep, a sleep that will be eternal."

INDIAN MEDIUM GIVEN FREEDOM

(By Associated Press.)
Greenfield, Mass., July 29.—Chief Rheamont, Indian medium, who was arrested on a warrant charging assault on a fellow-medium in the midst of a seance, was freed today when the plaintiff, Converse Nickerson, failed to appear.

The warrant charged that Rheamont struck Nickerson on the head with a guitar when the latter entered a room in which the Indian medium was conducting a seance. It was said that Nickerson had thrown a flashlight on Rheamont, spoiling the seance.

BAR EVOLUTION TEACHING

(By Associated Press.)
Atlanta, Georgia, July 29.—Teaching of evolution of Georgia's schools would be prohibited under provision of an amendment offered in the house of representatives today. The amendment was offered to the general appropriations bill and would provide that any teacher who taught a theory of the origin of man in contradiction to the Bible's account could not receive a salary from the common schools' appropriation.

CHASES BANDITS; IS SHOT TWICE

Pittsburgh, July 29.—J. S. Espy, owner of a hardware store, was wounded today by two negro robbers when he pursued them from his establishment to the 22nd street bridge. The robbers knocked Espy unconscious with a hand-billy and escaped with an undetermined amount of money. Espy recovered just as the negroes left the store. Armed with a pistol he went in pursuit, over-taking the men on the bridge. One of the robbers shot him twice, above the right eye and in the shoulder. His condition is serious.

SEEK STOCK OF YORK GAS FIRM

Gettysburg and Adams counties who hold stock in the York Gas Company will be interested to learn that letters are being issued to them informing them that the Continental Light and Power Company is offering to purchase all the stock of the company at $57 a share.

It is understood that the officers and directors recommend the sale. The present management is not to be disturbed and Grier Hersh will remain as president and T. W. McDonald as secretary and assistant general manager.

The Continental Light and Power Company has plants in various parts of the United States, and is expected to be able to improve the service in York.

At the last meeting of the stockholders in January of this year the financial report showed the company capital stock as $1,400,000, which was issued at a par value of $50.

Recently in the stock market the gas company's stock sold at $48 a share. During the last year the company sold a total of 263,000,000 feet of gas, President Hersch says, which was an increase of 24,000,000 feet over the business of the previous year. The value of the property and equipment is placed at $2,484,392. The company was organized in 1849 with Dr. Alexander Small as president, and Thomas P. Potts, secretary and treasurer. The capital stock was then $20,000 at $50 a share.

To Choke Liquor Supply At Source

(By Associated Press.)
Washington, July 29.—In furtherance of his plan to choke off the liquor supply at its source, Assistant Secretary Andrews of the Treasury proposes to erect a line of defense on the north and south borders of the country that will dove-tail in with the interior prohibition organization. The assistant secretary began consideration today of a plan to enforce the customs service border patrol to take care of the new defense arrangement. Mr. Andrews apparently is committed to a completely motorized border patrol system.

ARREST MOTHER, KIDNAPPING SON

San Antonio, Tex., July 29.—The legal battle for possession of Roscoe Canaday, Jr., broke out afresh Tuesday, when Mrs. Virginia Canaday, mother of the boy, was arrested on a fugitive warrant in connection with her indictment in New York for having kidnapped her child. The warrant was issued on complaint of the county attorney.

Mrs. Canaday had been notified by her counsel, Judge Linden, that she was wanted on the fugitive warrant, and she went to a constable's office to accept service, accompanied by her lawyer.

2000 ELKS MAY ATTEND MEETING

Bethlehem, Pa., July 29.—More than 2,000 members of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks are expected to be guests of local Elks when the state convention meets here August 23 to 27. The convention will be opened with a sacred concert on the evening of the first day, the remainder of the time being given over to business sessions and entertainment features. Competitive drills by teams from various lodges will be one of the features of the gathering. For entertainment there will be motor trips, dancing, golf matches, band concerts and baseball games.

ROOKIES ENJOY LIFE AT CAMP

From the water-soaked camp of the 105th Motor Repair Section, Gettysburg unit, comes the following communication from Private Wilbur "Moxie" Weikert, who says in part as follows:

July 27.
"Here we come on M. R. S. 105—Camp Miner, Mt. Gretna.
"On account of the young cloudburst was unable to report anything yesterday. Was out on a fatigue detail. When we arrived home we had to chase our lockers down the street. After overtaking them, it took us until midnight to get them placed. Monday morning the sun tried to shine. The outfit went to the garage to take up their duties as auto mechanics. First casualty, "Moxie" with a busted finger. Second casualty, Fritz Tate lost a 11-11 wrench and while hunting same bumped his head on a drive shaft of a truck. One of our mechanics is connecting a ground wire off of a magnet hooked on to the spark plug for the ground.
"Bill Withrow has turned out to be a very good cook, getting highly praised for his menus. Soak Aumen done his first K. P. (kitchen police) today. After breakfast was served he asked Bill if they used water to wash the pans. Eddie Hughes has made a very good orderly as well as a mascot. If it don't rain will see you tomorrow.

plan, Doctor Miner announced, is that the nurses will be better able to follow up defects in school children by going direct to their homes and advising parents of methods of improving sanitary conditions, diet, rest and personal hygiene.

Co-operation of the departments of Welfare and Public Instruction has already been arranged for by Doctor Miner. Dr. Ellen C. Potter, Secretary of Welfare, is now asking hospitals in cities and towns to aid in correcting physical defects found in the children of the rural districts where no hospitals are. (The Department of Public record charts of the children under teacher to aid in making the examinations effective by making out health record charts of the children under their care.

Inspections Necessary

Under the school code, such inspections will be necessary by the State Health Department only in the fourth-class or rural school districts, because the first, second and third-class districts, which are in cities and the larger boroughs, make the examinations through their local health officials. In the fourth-class districts, of which there are 2350, the work is done by the state.

Except for technical, medical and surgical problems, the work will be handled almost exclusively by nurses. In technical cases, they will have the assistance and supervision of county medical directors and some supervising inspectors, and physicians of the central office here. Supervising nurses in the rural sections have been asked to aid.

Need For Rural Inspection

Records are to be kept of inspections of each child, and where defects are found, notices will be sent direct to parents and the nurse will follow up by calls at the home.

School districts have been asked to aid by providing scales for weighing and measuring of the children.

In opening the school at Mont Alto, Doctor Miner told the nurses that present records of the department show that 18 to 30 per cent of all school children in the state are underweight or undernourished, that in rural communities children drink less milk than in cities, that decayed teeth are found in 20 to 30 per cent of all school children, and that 80 to 90 per cent of them have uncleaned teeth. Bad teeth, he said, have been found to be the largest contributing cause to childhood illnesses.

ARCH-CRIMINAL, RETIRED FARMER

Bucks County Man Wanted In Middle West As Murderer, Thief and Counterfeiter.

Doylestown, July 29.—A Bucks county "gentleman farmer," owner of an estate considered one of the show places of this section, is on his way to the Middle West today to face charges of murder, counterfeiting and robberies which, police say, stamp him as one of the shrewdest criminals run to earth in many years.

The prisoner is Nicholas Filipow, 46 years old, who lived along Street road, between Neshaminy and Eureka, and who is known also by half a dozen aliases. Filipow, it is said, has confessed many of the crimes charged against him and is ready to face the music.

Led Dual Life

With his arrest his family learned for the first time of the dual life led by the husband and father, whose periodical "business trips" to the west in recent years have yielded profits so lucrative that his wife and children have been enabled to live in luxury.

Police charge that Filipow would pass much of his time here, living a life of scrupulous respectability. When finances became low, he would go to the middle west, with which section he is said to be familiar, would perpetrate a crime with baffling skill, throw the police off his trail and in his role of a prosperous retired eastern farmer would return home at his leisure.

In the course of years, they charge, he has committed robberies in which the loot ran into many thousands, has sold fake "money-making machines" by the hundreds to deluded dupes, has turned counterfeiter and passer of bad money and finally killed a policeman who sought to arrest him.

Admits Murder Charge

The latter crime Filipow smilingly admitted. "I am the man you want," he said, "and I might as well admit everything. I have been able to evade the law for five years, but now you have me."

HIGH SCHOOL

ed ample for commencements and school plays.

On the second floor of the building are four additional classrooms and a large study hall, having a seating capacity of 140 persons, which is considered large enough to accommodate any one of the four classes.

Storage rooms and closet space also are provided on the second floor and elsewhere in the building, which is considered modern and complete in every respect, and large enough to accommodate high school pupils for many years to come.

Two Approaches

Two approaches will lead from Baltimore street to the new building, when landscape artists have completed their work in beautifying the grounds. Grass plots and flower beds will border a driveway from Baltimore street to the building. The roadway will be in the form of an ellipse, and conveyances driving from Baltimore street to the entrances of the building will continue around the circular drive and out an exit provided for that purpose.

The plans on display at Plank's window were prepared by Bernard E. Starr, Harrisburg, architect for the building.

ROAD FIGHT TO END

Harrisburg, July 29.—Reconstruction and relocation of an under-grade crossing under the Reading railway tracks in Carroll township, York county, on the Harrisburg-Gettysburg road is provided for in an order of the public service commission announced today.

JOHN DUTTERA DIES SUDDENLY

Former Superintendent of Littlestown Cemetery Suffers Fatal Stroke of Apoplexy Today.

John J. Duttera, 83, for 25 years superintendent of Mount Carmel cemetery, Littlestown, died suddenly at his home on North Queen street, Littlestown, this morning at 4:30 o'clock. At 4 o'clock Mr. Duttera and his wife awoke. His wife arose, but Mr. Duttera said there was no hurry and continued sleeping.

Shortly afterward, Mrs. Duttera noticed her husband's difficulty in breathing, and found she was unable to waken him. She called in a neighbor and a physician, but Mr. Duttera was dead when the doctor examined him. Death was attributed to a stroke of apoplexy.

Mr. Duttera was a son of the late Henry and Mary Duttera, and was born in Carroll county, Maryland. He was a plasterer by trade, and when a young man he followed that trade. He later became superintendent of Mount Carmel cemetery, Littlestown, but resigned because of ill health a number of years ago.

Funeral Saturday

The deceased is survived by his widow, who was Miss Lucinda Hesson, and five children: F. O. Duttera, chief of police in Littlestown; Charles Duttera and Mrs. Ella Angell, Littlestown; David Duttera, Hanover, and Mrs. Robert Frantz, Northampton. Twenty-four grandchildren and a number of great-grandchildren also survive.

The body was removed today to the home of his son, F. O. Duttera, from where funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. Earl G. Kline, pastor of Redeemer Reformed church, Littlestown, officiating. Interment in Mount Carmel cemetery.

FAIRBANKS TELLS OF KIDNAP PLOT

Los Angeles, July 29.—Douglas Fairbanks, motion picture star and husband of Mary Pickford, was the first witness called at Tuesday afternoon's session of the trial of three men accused of plotting to kidnap Miss Pickford for ransom.

The agile actor in his direct examination developed into the best witness so far for the prosecution. Revealing a heavy coat of tan and attired modestly, but modishly, in a light blue suit, Fairbanks said he was told of the plot about the middle of last May by Los Angeles police.

Between May 19 and May 30, when the three men were arrested, he said he saw Stephens and Holcomb four times loitering about the gates of the studio where he and Mary Pickford were regularly at work.

He added that on the first of those occasions Stephens was driving a large sedan, with Holcomb in the rear seat beside a third man, who, he said, he since had learned was Louis Geck.

Geck, who is said to be the state's star witness as the man who "sat in" with the three in the alleged plot, is reported missing.

Court attaches pointed out that Fairbanks failed in his direct examination to mention the name of Adrian Wood, the third member of the accused three.

MISSIONARY LOSES RACE WITH DEATH

Lebanon, July 29.—Miss Susan Bachman, a United Brethren missionary to Africa, arrived here Tuesday from Freetown, Sierra Leone, to find that she had lost her race with death. Learning by radio at Freetown on June 24 of the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. George Bachman, of this city, Miss Bachman began her long race in the hope of reaching the bedside of her stricken parent before death.

Four days out from Freetown the ship was wrecked, but all on board were safely landed by lifeboats on an island. A week later a passing ship was hailed and took off the passengers, landing them last Saturday at Pensacola, Fla.

By boat and rail Miss Bachman continued her journey here only to learn of the death of her mother on July 12. She plans to spend a year's furlough here and then return to Freetown.

York Opera House To Open August 10

Manager Ed. R. Moore, of the York Opera House, announced Monday that that vaudeville theater will open for the 1925-1926 season Monday afternoon, August 10, with a bill of high-class Keith-Albee vaudeville, consisting of five acts and a comedy photoplay. The York Opera House Harmonists, under the direction of Prof. Roman Shuman, will again furnish the music for the vaudeville house. Manager Moore went to New York for the purpose of personally selecting the acts for the opening bill.

ADAMS MOTORIST ARRESTED

C. F. Crum, Arendtsville, was arrested by Corporal Nathaniel F. Martin, of the state highway patrol, Saturday. Crum was apprehended in Paradise township, York county, and was summoned to appear before the Alderman N. C. May, York, to answer to a charge of reckless driving.

Lincoln Highway Rebuilding Starts

West Chester, July 29.—Work on rebuilding the Lincoln Highway between Downingtown and Exton has been started, and the inspector, William Henderson, and a corps of engineers from the state highway department started surveying to determine the grade levels and elevation of the road. The contractors, with a force of men, will begin to dig up the four-mile stretch soon and the work will be pushed as rapidly as possible.

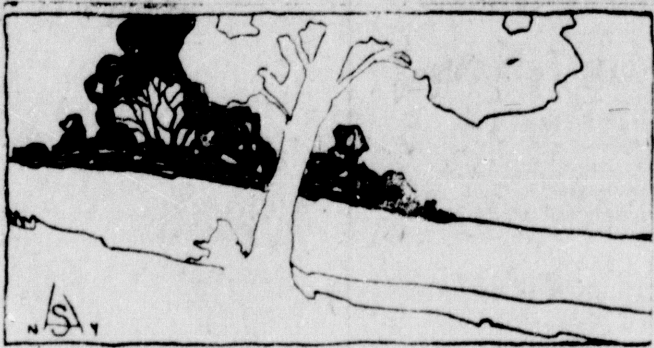

Just how long the work will take was not stated by Inspector Henderson, but it will be well along by the time cold weather sets in. The material will arrive immediately after operations begin and will be unloaded at both ends of the road, using the freight yards at Downingtown and the open lot on the south side of the Lincoln Highway at Exton.

MEMORIAL TREES FOR SOLDIER DEAD

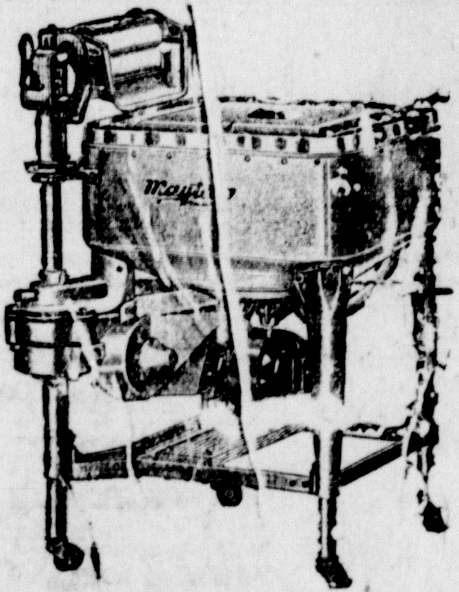

Oil City, Pa., July 29.—Memorial trees, as monuments to residents of Oil City and vicinity who lost their lives in the World War, are to be planted under the auspices of the James H. Henderson post of the American Legion along the McKinney highway between Oil City and Titusville. The movement was suggested and is being made possible by A. F. Seep, local merchant, whose two sons were killed in an airplane accident near Paris a few years ago.

A list of persons entitled to the honor is being completed, and it is thought that 200 trees will be needed. The trees will bear a marker giving the name, organization and date of death of the soldier in whose honor each is planted. Armistice Day has been fixed as the date to dedicate the memorial.

IN A VESSEL OF EARTH

In a vessel of earth it came,
A spirit with beauty aflame;
Her laughter, her song and her mirth,
All held in a vessel of earth,
A jar which was fragile, but oh,
We cherished and loved it so!

But our treasure was not of the clay,
For the vessel lies broken today
And mute is the voice, and the eyes
Light not with delight and surprise,
And no mortal hand can replace
That spirit of beauty and grace.

There are numberless vessels of earth
Still holding life's music and mirth,
Still glowing with the spirit, and yet
There was one we shall never forget,
One which held in its beautiful mold
Something never another could hold.

Others carry sweet music and mirth,
Others come with delights to the earth,
But we know now that fragrance we
miss,

That sound of her voice, and her kiss,
That life which we loved was her soul,
And not the mere clay of the bowl.

And we know what we loved cannot die,

Though broken its vessel may lie;
And we know why the clay was so fair,

'Twas because she was nestled in
there;

We have learned 'twas her beautiful soul
Which really made lovely the bowl.

CHAPTER XII—Continued

I had not gone a hundred yards
before I deeply repented my rash-ness. I may have said somewhere in this chronicle that I am too imaginative to be a really courageous man, but that I have an overpowering fear of seeming afraid. This was the power which now carried me onwards. I simply could not slink back with nothing done. Even if my comrades should not have missed me, and should never have known of my weakness, there would still remain some intolerable self-shame in my own soul.
And yet I shuddered at the position in which I found myself, and would have given all I possessed at that moment to have been honorably free of the whole business.

It was dreadful in the forest.
The trees grew so thickly and their foliage spread so widely that I could see nothing of the moonlight save that here and there the high branches made a tangled filgree against the starry sky. As the eyes became more used to the obscurity one learned that there were different degrees of darkness among the trees—that some were dimly visible, while between and among them there were coal-black shadowed patches, like the mouths of caves, from which I shrank in horror as I passed. I thought of the despairing yell of the tortured iguanaodon—that dreadful cry which had echoed through the woods. I thought, too, of the glimpse I had in the light of Lord
John's torch of that bloated, warty, blood-slaverer's muzzle. Even now I was on its hunting-ground. At any instant it might spring upon me from the shadows—this nameless and horrible monster! I stopped, and, picking a cartridge from my pocket, I opened the breach of my gun. As I touched the lever my heart leaped within me. It was the shot-gun, not the rifle, which I had taken!

Again the impulse to return swept over me. Here, surely, was a most excellent reason for my failure—one for which no one would think the less of me. But again the foolish pride fought against that very word. I could not—must not—fail. After all, my rifle would probably have been as useless as a shot-gun against such dangers as I might meet. If I were to go back to camp to change my weapon I could hardly expect to enter and leave again without being seen. In that case there would be explanations, and my attempt would no longer be all my own.

After a little hesitation, then, I screwed up my courage and continued upon my way, my useless gun under my arm.

The darkness of the forest had been alarming, but even worse
was the white, still flood of moonlight in the open glade of the iguanaodon. Hidden among the bushes, I looked out at it. None of the great brutes were in sight.
Perhaps the tragedy which had befallen one of them had driven them from their feeding-ground.
In the misty, silvery night I could see no sign of any living thing.
Taking courage, therefore, I slipped rapidly across it, and among the jungle on the farther side I picked up once again the brook which was my guide. It was a cheery companion, gurgling and chuckling as it ran, like the dear old trout-stream in the West Country where I have fished at night in my boy-hood. So long as I followed it down I must come to the lake, and so long as I followed it back I must come to the camp. Often I had to lose sight of it on account of the tangled brushwood, but I was always within earshot of its tinkles and splash.

As one descended the slope the woods became thinner, and bushes, with occasional high trees, took the place of the forest. I could make good progress, therefore,
and I could see without being seen.

I passed close to a pterodactyl swamp, and as I did so, with a dry, crisp, leathery rattle of wings,
one of these great creatures—it was twenty feet at least from tip to tip—rose up from somewhere near me and soared into the air.
As it passed across the face of the moon the light shone clearly
through the membranous wings,
and it looked like a flying skeleton against the white, tropical radiance. I crouched low among the bushes, for I knew from past experience that with a single cry
the creature could bring a hundred of its loathsome mates about my ears. It was not until it had settled again that I dared to steal
onwards upon my journey.

The night had been exceedingly still, but as I advanced I became conscious of a low, rumbling
sound, a continuous murmur, somewhere in front of me. This grew louder as I proceeded, until at last it was clearly quite close to me. When I stood still the sound was constant, so that it seemed to come from some stationary cause. It was like a boiling kettle or the bubbling of some great pot. Soon I came upon the source of it, for in the center of a small clearing I found a lake—or a pool, rather, for it was not larger than the basin of the Trafalgar Square fountain—of some black, pitch-like stuff, the surface of which rose and fell in great bil-lows of bursting gas. The air above it was shimmering with heat, and the ground round was so hot that I could hardly bear to lay my hand on it. It was clear that the great volcanic outburst which had raised this strange plateau so many years ago had not yet entirely spent its forces. Blackened rocks and mounds of lava I had already seen everywhere peeping out from amid the luxuriant vegetation which draped them, but this asphalt pool in the jungle was the first sign that we had of actual volcanic activity on the slopes of the ancient crater. I had no time to examine it further, for I had need to hurry if I were to be back in camp in the morning.

It was a fearsome walk, and one which will be with me as long as memory holds. In the great moonlight clearings I slunk along among the shadows on the margin.
In the jungle I crept forward, stopping with a beating heart whenever I heard, as I often did, the crash of breaking branches as some wild beast went past. Now and then great shadows loomed up for an instant and were gone—great, silent shadows which seemed to crawl upon padded feet. How often I stopped with the intention of returning, and yet every time my pride conquered my fear, and sent me on again until my object should be attained.

At last (my watch showed that it was one in the morning) I saw the gleam of water amid the openings of the jungle, and ten minutes later I was among the reeds upon the borders of the central lake. I was exceedingly dry, so I lay down and took a long draught of its waters, which were fresh and cold. There was a broad pathway with many tracks upon it at the spot which I had found, so that it was clearly one of the drinking-places of the animals.
Close to the water's edge there was a huge isolated block of lava.
Up this I climbed, and, lying on the top, I had an excellent view in every direction.

The first thing which I saw filled me with amazement. When I described the view from the summit of the great tree, I said that on the farther cliff I could see a number of dark spots, which appeared to be the mouths of caves. Now,
as I looked up at the same cliffs,
I saw discs of light in every direction, ruddy, clearly-defined patches, like the porches of a liner in the darkness. For a moment I thought it was the lava-glow from some volcanic action; but this could not be so. Any volcanic action would surely be down in the hollow, and not high among the rocks. What, then, was the alternative? It was wonderful, and yet it must surely be. These ruddy spots must be the reflection of fires in the caves fires—which could only be lit by the hand of man. There were human beings, then, upon the plateau.
How gloriously my expedition was justified! Here was news indeed for us to bear back with us to London!

For a long time I lay and watched these red, quivering blotches of light. I suppose they were ten miles off from me, yet even at that distance one could observe how,
from time to time, they twinkled
or were obscured as someone passed before them. What would I not have given to be able to crawl up to them, to peep in, and to take back some word to my comrades
as to the appearance and character of the race who lived in so strange a place! It was out of the question for the moment, and yet surely we could not leave the plateau until we had some definite knowledge upon that point.

Man Unaware Of Injuries Helps
To Clear Debris

Woodbury, July 29.—With three ribs and right hand broken in two places and right wrist fractured, following an automobile accident, William H. Davis, of Mantua, walked to a garage and rode back to the scene of the smashup before he fainted, disclosing his injuries.

Davis, with his brother-in-law, Richard S. Wiatt, of Camden, was driving to Mullica Hill. Near the farm of Isaac Jones, on the Mantua
pike, Earl Eldridge, of Mullica Hill, who was traveling in the opposite direction, turned out to overtake a car ahead of him and met the Davis car head-on. Wiatt was cut on the face and head and was taken to the Underwood hospital.

Davis did not appear to be injured
and rode a mile with the hospital-bound car. He then walked to a garage, walked back to the towing car and was assisting with his own machine when he fainted.

Eldridge was not injured seriously.

$600,000 Damages
In Lancaster Storm

Lancaster, July 29.—With reports
still coming in from outlying sections that for a time were wholly cut off by the cloudburst and flood that swept northern Lancaster county late Saturday and Sunday, the total property loss from the storm is being estimated today at from $500,000 to $600,000.

Burned barns, flooded cellars,
wrecked bridges, washed out railroad and trolley tracks and badly damaged crops today are reminders of the fury of the storm. A half dozen barns near here were fired by lightning bolts and nearly a score of bridges over numerous streams were either washed away
or badly damaged.

The storm centered around Manheim, and caused the streets of that town to be flooded late Saturday, but the resultant flood did not reach its height until Sunday morning. The United States Asbestos Company plant at Manheim was badly damaged by the flood waters. Officials of the company said today the property loss would exceed $50,000.

WHEAT CROP ON WAY TO MARKET

Bloomsburg, Pa., July 29.—Central Pennsylvania's wheat crop has begun to move to the market. Starting in the middle of this month, shipments were begun from county points, due to the local mills being unable to handle all of the crop. The shipments, which will continue until about the middle of September, have been growing annually.

This year's crop started into the market at a price of $1.40 a bushel,
the highest price for a new crop since the World War. Last year, the first of the crop went into the market at $1.05 a bushel, but the price passed the $2 mark before the crop was entirely marketed, due to the fact that scores of farmers were holding for a rise. Some of them had held their crop for several years in anticipation of better prices.

Less farmers this year are holding their crop, because of the high price prevailing when the new wheat market opened, and thousands of bushels of grain already have been shipped.

Cross-Continent
Trip Costs $30

Williamsport, Pa., July 29.—Thirty-four days after Harold Rader left Los Angeles he arrived at his home near here, having covered the entire distance with the exception of about 300 miles by "lifts" from motorists. His trip cost him $30 and he said he slept in hotels several nights and went to theatres in many of the large cities
he passed through.

Rader left his home August 1, 1924,
for Los Angeles and worked his way to the coast by doing farm labor.
After leaving that city he said he made his way easily to Salina, Kansas, where he spent several of the 34 days with relatives. There he met a motorist who took him 600 miles to St. Louis. From St. Louis he went to Zanesville, Ohio, and from there a motorist took him to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. He then got to Johnstown, where he went by railroad to Altoona. He walked from Altoona to Tyrona, where he again took a train
as far as Lock Haven. From Lock Haven he walked the remaining 31 miles to his home, arriving about 2 o'clock one morning.

U. S. ENVOY TO JAPAN SUCCEDES

Tokio, July 29.—Edgar Addison Barnett, American Ambassador to Japan, died at 9:50 o'clock last night (Tuesday) at Karuizawa.

Death was the result of a duodenal ulcer. The Ambassador had been confined to bed for three weeks. At 6 o'clock last night he suffered a relapse and restoratives failed. Dr. Ikeda, who was at his bedside, said Mr. Barnett died peacefully.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pond, of Chicago, friends of the Ambassador, were with him when he died. They plan to bring the body to Tokyo for return to the United States.

Edwin L. Neville, First Secretary of the American Embassy, will be Charge d'Affaires pending appointment of a new Ambassador.

Mr. Bancroft was appointed Ambassador to Japan last August and assumed his post in November. He was 68 years old.

Prior to his appointment he was widely known as a distinguished lawyer.

School Superintendents to Care
For Mentally Deficient Children

Harrisburg, Pa., July 29.—Pennsylvania's school superintendents were requested to make preparations for caring for physically and mentally handicapped deficient children in their districts in a letter sent them by Dr. Francis B. Haas, superintendent of public instruction. Provisions for the education of these classes of children were made in a group of bills sponsored by Senator Lantus, the blind senator from York, in the 1925 legislature.

Under the school code whenever there are ten or more pupils requiring any particular type of education the school board is required to make special preparations for them, Dr. Haas said. Where the number is smaller joint classes may be formed with adjacent districts or special education may be obtained in residential schools. Each school district will receive $300 for each of these special classes in addition to the regular state aid, payable under the Edmonds' school law.

A bulletin accompanying the letter favorable report on agricultural conditions generally was given to President Coolidge Monday by Representative Purnell, Republican, of Indiana, ranking member of the Agricultural Committee.

Mr. Purnell joined with Senator Curtis, the Republican leader, in asserting that the principal legislation which now seems necessary for the farmers was along the line of co-operative marketing. A bill which would give government assistance in this, he believes, would place agriculture on a substantial basis.

NEW OXFORD

New Oxford.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flesman, of Waynesboro, spent Sunday here with Mr. and Mrs. John Flesman.

Miss Helen Slaybaugh, nurse in training at Mercy Hospital, Baltimore, spent Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Slaybaugh.

Miss Pauline Flesman, High street, is spending the week at Waynesboro. Ivan Rickrode, was in York. Monday on business.

Mrs. A. Weikert, Lincoln Way West, is having her residence repainted.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gable, Hanover, visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Baugher, Lincoln Way West, on Sunday. Mr. Baugher was quite ill, but is improving.

The Abbottstown Water Company is unloading a car load of water main pipes at the local station. The company will extend its water lines over the borough of Abbottstown.

Mrs. H. J. Smith spent Tuesday in York with friends.

AIR BASE SHIFT PUZZLES CHIEFS

Washington, July 29.—Secretary Wilbur's proposal, announced Monday, to make San Diego, California, the home airport of the Los Angeles and the Shenandoah has mystified navy officials, including officers of the air service.

No provision for the establishment of a base for rigid dirigibles on the Pacific coast was contained in the navy's preliminary budget estimate, and no instructions have been received from Secretary Wilbur to prepare an estimate for a supplemental appropriation. Neither Acting Secretary Robinson nor Admiral Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, would comment on Mr. Wilbur's statement beyond saying that the plan, as described in press dispatches, was news to them.

Lightning Stuns McSherrystown Fans

During the electrical storm which interrupted the baseball game between Hanover and McSherrystown baseball clubs Sunday afternoon, a bolt struck a pole on the grounds and stunned some of the spectators, standing along the third base line where a wire netting is hung on the fence. Among these were Dr. M. J. Brennan and Frank Topper, who were thrown to the ground. The former had part of his clothing torn from him. They were not injured. The spikes on the players' shoes and the damp ground caused the current to be felt by them.

ON WAY TO COAST

New York, July 29.—Lincoln Ellsworth, the American co-leader with Raold Amundsen in the north pole aerial expedition, is on his way to New York from Copenhagen on the steamer Frederick VIII, due August 1, it was learned Monday. He sailed from Copenhagen July 21.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear husband, Earl D. Miller, who died July 29, 1924.

Rest on, dear husband, your labor is o'er.

Your willing hands will toil no more; A faithful husband, true and kind, A better husband I could not find.

Farewell, dear husband, you are at rest, And will forever be. You could not stay here on earth with us, But we can come to thee.

The midnight stars are beaming Upon your lonely grave, Where you are sleeping now at rest, Those eyes that now are closed in death.

By his wife.
As the evening sun is setting, Oft times as I sit alone, In my heart there comes a feeling That my dear son must come home. Yes, I miss, oh, how I miss him, I can see his vacant chair; Oh, how sad the home without him, For my son is not there. Days of sadness still come o'er me, Hidden tears so often flow, But I pray to meet you yonder In that home of peace and rest.

By his mother.
